

The Asokible

In the beginning there was fire and water, and the elements in the sky no life, then on the first day of Askiata, In Unum Deum Touched the earth and blessed it with life with the intention of living life as best as possible and achieving as much as possible in the fight against Tenebris Unum. And the battle of morals began. Billions of years later people were beginning to believe in idols and false gods that only bought death and destruction so one hot day in Arabia In Unum Deum contacted Askew the great and told him the earths truth and how life really began and how we were losing the battle of morals. And that to win the Askian religion and the word Of In Unum Deus must be spread to all who are open minded. And so askew the great set to work and converted those who were willing to listen to the truth and from then on the tide of the battle was turning and good started to prevail.

Yet despite this many would not listen and soon many began blaspheming and openly insulting In Unum Deus, Askew again spoke with In Unum Deus and asked why would he allow this and In Unum Deus replied, "Man is unique in the way I gave it thought and free will, and this cannot be stopped for it is what I intended it is there choice to abuse these rights and they shall be punished" and so Askew listened wisely and went on to enlighten all his disciples and soon the world with his knowledge.
